Career Matchmaker Results

Education & Training

To get a job as a translator, you generally need at least a college degree with specializations in language and translation. To obtain international work, you should be fluent in at least three languages.

Having a Bachelor of Arts in the language to be translated, passing a test, and being skilled in three of the six official United Nations languages are the minimum requirements needed to work for the United Nations.

A translator can do a better job if he or she has a good basic understanding of the subject matter of the document being translated. For example, if he or she is translating an article on engineering, computers, finance, medicine, or law, it would be helpful to have a background in that subject.
